

NEWS FROM THE COUNTIES

More than forty bushels of pure-bred seed corn were ordered this season by farmers in Maury county, Tennessee. This corn will be developed for use in the county.

Walter Hancock, of Wilson county, has thirty acres of crimson clover which he says has given him more winter pasture than any crop he has ever had before on a similar area.

J. E. Underwood, of Sevier county, says that the road going along his farm never gets too muddy for a horse to trot over. He gives credit to the split-log drag which he uses on the road.

W. H. Owen, of Anderson county, built a 10x23-foot silo for $24.40. It has been a great success, and now he wishes it were larger. He kept his cattle in fine shape all winter. The young stock were almost fat enough for the market the last of March.

On the farm of Jesse Stafford, in Sevier county, early in March, was held a demonstration of common methods of pruning orchard trees. Mr. Stafford was well pleased, and many neighbors who saw the work done have also sprayed and pruned their orchards.

People at Clifty, in White county, are planning to build a community silo in order that they may have better feed for the cows they own. Each family has a cow or two. Those interested have agreed to grow so much silage, which shall be placed in the common silo and proportioned out at feeding time. The silage is to be delivered once each day. For this community idea seems to be a good one, but it could not be adapted to many places. It does show, however, what can be accomplished in co-operation.

THE YOUNG BREEDERS STANDARD OF PURE-BREDS

Registered Stock in Hands of Beginners Are Mostly Under Weight—Should Be Weighed Often.

(By R. M. Murphy, Division of Extension, University of Tennessee.)

Every day some one is embarking in the purebred live stock business. Frequently he knows very little by actual contact with the breed of his choice. How is he to know when he has a Percheron, a Shorthorn, or a Duroc Jersey? Of course he has the registration papers, but is that sufficient? Every day the men of the Division of Extension of the College of Agriculture are called upon to look over some hopeful young breeder's animals or herd of which he is rightfully proud. More frequently than otherwise we are disappointed, even though we do not tell him so. Almost invariably if he has purchased immature animals in the beginning, his stock is undersized. This simply because he has not been in the habit of feeding the common stock, and does not appreciate the necessity of it here.

I was called out to look over a young Percheron the other day, coming three years old, and found a very nice Percheron color, bone, foot and draft conformation, but an animal weighing only 1,000 pounds. In weight he was in the roadster class. He should have been weighing 1,500 at least. He would have been a disappointment to any Percheron breeder. The only trouble was lack of feed, and the reason he had not had it was simply because his owner did not know how big a Percheron should be.

In case of purebred animals, and more particularly perhaps, the heavy horse and the meat producing animals, the most important standard for the young breeder to establish is that of weight. He should find out how much his young animals should weigh at six months, twelve months, eighteen months, two years, etc., and see that they come up to this standard.

The most common criticism of purebred stock in the hands of amateurs is that they are undersized.

WHERE TO GO FOR YOUR REGISTERED LIVE STOCK

Division of Extension Issues Complete List of Tennessee Breeders of Live Stock.

(By Harry B. Potter, Division of Extension, University of Tennessee.)

What will likely prove of great value to the farmers of Tennessee is a pamphlet just issued by the Division of Extension of the College of Agriculture. It lists the names and addresses of all Tennessee breeders of Registered Live Stock.

For some time there has been a call for just such a list. Farmers desiring a certain breed of live stock have not known where they could go to get the foundation stock. This publication will be sent free to any one addressing the Division of Extension, College of Agriculture, Knoxville, Tennessee.

In the pamphlet are listed the names and addresses of the breeders of the various breeds of beef cattle, dairy cattle, dual purpose cattle, horses, jacks and jennets, sheep and goats, and swine. Leading breeds are illustrated.

There is also given a list of the various national live stock associations, with their officers. In fact, the bulletin is complete in directing the reader to the kind of live stock he desires to produce on his farm.

OUTRAGEOUS CONDUCT

HEAVILY SCORED

Editor News:

Please give me space to speak a few words about the conduct of some men and boys of Sequachee, who are on hand when there is a gathering of any kind at the Hall or church, it does not make much difference to them where they go, their conduct is nearly as bad one place as another.

Now, on Saturday night of last week at the hall was a disgrace to the boys of Sequachee, or some of them, anyway. For instance, those who bellowed at a lady who was there with her children, and who was hunting for some dishes which had been thrown away. Just think of boys, you might say men, who would do such a thing as to destroy people's dishes who take them there to try and help a good cause, only to be run over by such a gang of ruffians. Then that is not half what was done. Someone kept the lights blown out as fast as they could get to them. Last Saturday night was not the first time that this had been done, it has been going on too long for the good of the town now. Young men with shelled corn in their pockets, throwing it in old people's faces—but there is no use of me trying to tell, as you all would have to get out an extra to print it.

Will some one tell who is to blame for this conduct. Is it the boys or parents? It surely must be the boys. If not, oh what mothers and fathers some children of Sequachee must claim. But let the blame fall where it belongs. If on the head of any family, there let it stay, or let that head get busy and remove the blame, which would be a great blessing for Sequachee. Nearly every boy, or let me say, everyone who was in this disgraceful conduct has a mother or a sister who was looking on or at home, and I know this much, or believe it, that each boy was asked to be a good boy and behave themselves like men, which they said they would, and then just as quick as he was out of sight, made himself a disgrace to the town.

Who can do as so many did Saturday night and honor his old mother and father. When you fail to honor mother and father you dishonor them for when you fail in the first you succeed in the latter. But as sure as you live, you must surely die, so must your dear old mother, and when she is gone it is too late then to make amends for the dishonor you have heaped upon your dear old mother's head, so be careful what you do.

When you see mothers and fathers take it into their heads to go out with their boys to the Hall or church, then some changes will take place in the conduct in Sequachee, and not before, for we might as well say we have no peace officers in this county, or at least it looks that way now. What you get this day and time is all you have, so why not try and get some peace officers. Then you will have them.

I do not mean to hurt anyone's feelings in writing this, but I want people to know that there is plenty of room for improvement in the conduct of young men and boys of Sequachee and other towns in this county. Why should this be passed by when it is in the power of some one to put a stop to it.

Who will stop his part of this trouble or stand by the officer who undertakes to stop it, for Sequachee is in need of some one with a back bone as stiff as fence rail.

I may have some more to say in the future, as there is more than a plenty to say which ought to be said.

AM I ALONE?

Guard Your Children Against Bowel Trouble

Many children at an early age become constipated, and frequently serious consequences result. Not being able to realize his own condition, a child's bowels should be constantly watched, and a gentle laxative given when necessary. Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are especially well adapted to women and children. The Sisters of Christian Charity, 531 Charles St., Luzerne, Pa., who attend many cases of sickness say of them:

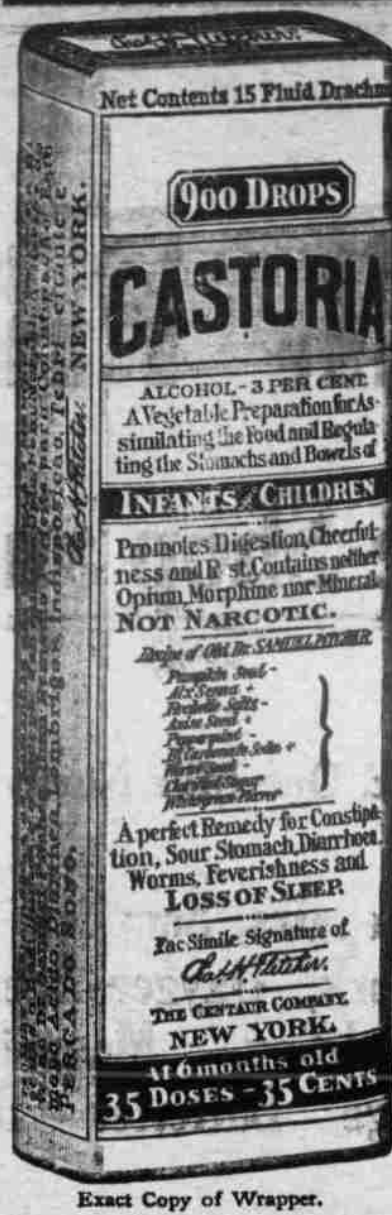

"Some time ago we began using Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets and find that we like them very much. Their action is excellent and we are grateful for having been made acquainted with them. We have had good results in every case and the Sisters are very much pleased."

The form and flavor of any medicine is very important, no matter who is to take it. The taste and appearance are especially important when children are concerned. All parents know how hard it is to give the average child "medicine," even though the taste is partially disguised. In using Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets, however, this difficulty is overcome. The shape of the tablets, their appearance and candy-like taste at once appeal to any child, with the result that they are taken without objection.

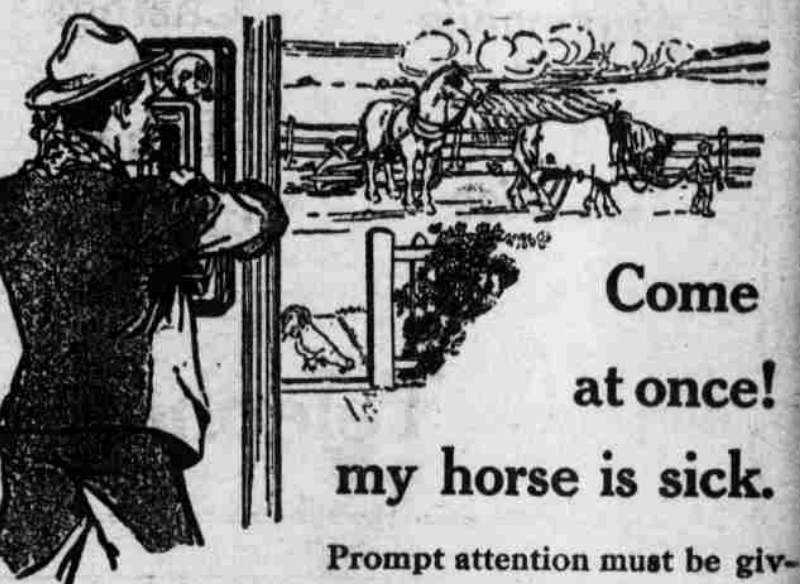

The rich chocolate flavor and absence of other taste, make Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets the ideal remedy for children.
